Stormwater Questionnaires for Owners/Developers

Webcast: Thursday, October 14, 2010

Three-hour audio Web broadcast

Eastern: 12:00 pm – 3:00 pm

Central: 11:00 am – 2:00 pm

Mountain: 10:00 am – 1:00 pm

Pacific: 9:00 am – 12:00 pm

Session Description: EPA is currently developing a proposed rulemaking to strengthen its stormwater program under the Clean Water Act with particular emphasis on reducing the impact of stormwater discharges from new and redeveloped sites to our Nation's waters (See Federal Register Notice (74 FR 68617, December 28, 2009)).

To inform this proposal, EPA is distributing questionnaires to various entities that may be affected by any regulation. In particular, in mid-September, EPA sent two questionnaires to a sample of owners/developers of point source discharges that are involved with new construction, development and redevelopment of residential, non-residential, industrial, and commercial properties. (i.e., "Owner/Developer Questionnaire"). Recipients have 60 days to complete and return the questionnaires. The purpose of this webcast is to briefly describe the purpose of the questionnaire, how the questionnaire data will be used, how recipients were selected, and to answer questions about the type of information that needs to be submitted. People who did not receive a questionnaire may attend the webcast, but EPA will only be answering questions about the questionnaires during this webcast. Additional information about the questionnaires and the proposed stormwater rulemaking, including copies of the Owner/Developer Questionnaires, can be found at www.epa.gov/npdes/stormwater/rulemaking.

Session Format: After a presentation from EPA about the owner/developer questionnaire, EPA will answer comments submitted by audience members through the webcast website. There will be a brief break at approximately 90 minutes into the webcast.
