

PRECAUTIONS

1. Do not apply directly to the face or eyes. If they appear irritated, they may even be stinging. Avoid use on application of the skin.
2. Do not use more than the amount needed to reach the roots. An application to the roots which is left to the roots of a plant may cause skin irritation. It is safer to use a little than too much.
3. Do not apply emulsion when plants are damp, when it is raining or cloudy, or when conditions may be such that the emulsion will collect on the leaves. In hot, humid weather, this can induce "scald" rot, especially when plants are too close together. Excessive irrigation should be avoided. Do not irrigate with water unless the soil is dark brown.
4. A 50-50 TSC 350 emulsion should give satisfactory results, even in hot, dry weather. Under severe conditions when daytime temperatures often exceed 95° F. in the shade, it may be advisable to reduce the concentration by mixing equal parts TSC 350 to four parts water. A little extra water will help to keep the plants from wilting. If the plants are severely wilted, a little extra water will help to keep the plants from wilting.
5. For best results, use a spray nozzle. Care should be taken to spray the roots of the plant. If the plant is in a pot, the soil should be moist. Care should be taken to spray the roots of the plant.
6. Do not use on plants which are severely wilted or which are suffering from other diseases. For best results, use a spray nozzle. Care should be taken to spray the roots of the plant.
