

Handwritten text, possibly a signature or name, located at the top center of the page.

ACCEPTED
JUN 12 1966
UNDER THE FUNGICIDE ACT
FOR ECONOMIC POLICY
ED UNDER NO. 1021-986
TO ATTACHED COMMENT.

Faint, illegible text, likely a header or introductory paragraph.

Faint, illegible text, possibly a section header or a specific point.

Faint, illegible text, possibly a paragraph of discussion.

Faint, illegible text, possibly a paragraph of discussion.

Faint, illegible text, possibly a paragraph of discussion.

Faint, illegible text, possibly a paragraph of discussion.

Faint, illegible text, possibly a paragraph of discussion.

1. The Commission on the Status of Women, established in 1946, was the first of its kind. It was created by the United Nations to address the needs and concerns of women worldwide. The Commission's mandate is to promote gender equality and to advise the United Nations on ways to achieve this goal. It has been instrumental in the development of international instruments such as the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) and the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action.

2. The Commission has held numerous sessions and has produced a wealth of reports and recommendations. It has also been a key player in the negotiation and adoption of CEDAW, which is the most comprehensive international human rights instrument relating to the rights of women. The Commission's work has been crucial in raising the profile of women's rights on the international agenda and in ensuring that they are treated as a central part of human rights.

3. The Commission's efforts have led to significant progress in the recognition and realization of women's rights. It has provided a platform for women to voice their concerns and demands for change. The Commission's work has also inspired national and regional movements for women's rights, leading to the adoption of laws and policies that promote gender equality. The Commission's continued work is essential for ensuring that the goal of gender equality is achieved for all women and girls.