DISPOSAL

Do not reuse empty container. Wrap container and put in trash collection.

All places where slugs and snails are likely to be found should be treated. They seek shelter during the day in protected cool areas. They prefer damp locations around flower beds, under shrubbery, in rock gardens, hedges and low-growing ground covers such as ivy and Ajuga.

When applied as directed, Slug & Snail Meal will withstand rain and sprinkling, and will offer protection to gardens and lawns for several weeks. During periods of damp weather, slugs and snails are very active and multiply rapidly; it may be necessary to reapply more frequently to replace the bait that is consumed.

Slugs and snails will be attracted to the bait and will quickly be killed after feeding. For best results, soil should be moist at time of application. In dry weather, water before baiting.

For all applications listed below, distribute 1 lb. of bait per 800 sq. ft.

Property Lines: Slugs and snails often migrate from neighboring properties. Place a thin line of bait along the property line to intercept the pests before they can damage garden areas.

Heavy Infestations: Broadcast bait lightly over the infested ground. When used in this way, bait may have to be replaced more often.

Dispersive Lawns: Broadcast bait uniformly over the lawn for complete control. Bait heavily in adjoining areas surrounding the lawn to eliminate migration to this area.
