

I think this means a form of rule to make an appeal in a way.

Tel L. Lewis

LH called and asked if I had any update on when permit was going to be issued

She said they really want, if at all possible, to get at least a month's notice so they can have people ready to deal w/ it.

I said I don't see the Final permit being issued soon - I can even offer a prediction that it'll be ready in 6-9 months (which is a timeline I can usually predict out to...)

- I explained how we've seen working on it and other permits and how we've described it times by stuff like the Score (1-5 budget)

~~she~~ she asked if we're writing for the Rules I said No, but we track them and the fits and starts of in scheduling have bothered us a bit and delayed us a bit

- We'd be wish faster if one of that was going on and especially if we had National Standards that were clear and dictated permit limits

- She <sup>admitted she was</sup> very pleased for our delay → They prefer to keep current permit <sub>As long as possible</sub>
