Subject: Schiller Spill Update

The Coast Guard closely monitored the situation yesterday and returned to wrap-up things this morning. Everyone agrees that the total volume of oil involved was less than one quart. The inspector indicated that Schiller received a "verbal warning", but that no written notice would be issued. The drain line was flushed yesterday and the spill appears to be complete. Boom will remain in place over the next couple of days to ensure that all residual oil is captured. Station personnel plan to issue a written report with findings and corrective actions in the next week or two. I can forward it to you if you would like a copy. Please call or email if you have any other questions. Thanks, Allan.
