Subject AQSPROD Database Available on the New Hardware

AQS Users,

The AQSPROD database will be available today on the new hardware. Although there is no difference in how the database is accessed, the transition does require a short time when all users must be off the database. During the time that everyone is off the database, the computer address will be changed on the web form so the new database will be available. The new screen message will indicate that you have accessed the database on the new hardware.

All users need to be disconnected from the database by or before 2:30 PM Eastern. The new database will be available for access at 3:00 PM Eastern.

Thanks,
Jake Summers
